TOES

In politics it's not healthy to step on toes, particularly when they're sensitive. Sen. Nye, chairman of the senate munitions committee, is finding that out. His countrymen aren't positive that Sen. Nye's conduct of the investigation into the factors and causes of war has been above reproach. They are willing to concede, however, that he has been digging into some interesting and valuable information.

It was inevitable that some feelings would be hurt when he dug close to the wartime record of Woodrow Wilson. No one has excavated in that vicinity without producing cries of pain. The cries emitted in the senate last week by certain staunch Democrats were full of agony.

That is a matter of politics. The causes of war, on the other hand, have nothing to do with partisan politics. If the munitions committee's investigation is blocked for no better reason than the acute pain in certain sensitive Democratic toes, the owners of the toes will have some fancy explaining to do. Perhaps Sen. Nye is out of line, but if he is that could not possibly be a good excuse to stop the investigation for the dubious pleasure of getting even with him.

FANFARE OFFSTAGE

There's nothing new in the idea of the governor of a state and the president of the United States getting together to work out their political problems, but the method chosen by Gov. Davey is exceptional. On Wednesday he will lead an expedition of modest size to Washington to do the thing with a flourish. All that is lacking in arrangements, apparently, is a band. Maybe that will be forthcoming at the station in Washington.

The expedition should impress the capital, which is Gov. Davey's purpose, no doubt. He hopes to arrange everything as advantageously for himself and for Mr. Roosevelt as possible. It is a mutual ambition, for Mr. Roosevelt needs Ohio as much. If not more, than Mr. Davey needs Washington. The question up to this time has been whether or not Gov. Davey could keep Ohio in line for President Roosevelt. There will be an answer forthcoming this week, and Gov. Davey hopes it will be a pleasing one. If it isn't—but why worry about it?

UNSETTLED

The resignation of T. Jefferson Coolidge, under-secretary of the treasury, calls attention again to the difficulty the Roosevelt administration has had with financial officials and advisers.

Dean Acheson, appointed as under-secretary by the late William H. Woodin, President Roosevelt's first secretary of the treasury, served from May 19, 1933, to Nov. 16, 1933. He resigned shortly after the Warren gold purchase policy became effective.

Henry Morgenthau, present secretary of the treasury, succeeded Mr. Acheson.

Prof. Oliver M. W. Sprague, who became financial adviser to the Roosevelt administration in May, 1933, subsequently resigned when his opinions lost prestige.

Thomas Hewes, who had been appointed an assistant secretary of the treasury under Mr. Woodin, resigned in December, 1933, after authority over the bureau of internal revenue had been transferred to Under-Secretary Morgenthau.

L. W. Robert Jr., an assistant secretary, submitted his resignation at the same time that Mr. Coolidge resigned. No particular significance is attached to the resignation of Mr. Robert, but it is believed that Mr. Coolidge resigned because he could not approve the administration's emergency spending policy. He did not wish to appear to endorse during an election year a policy in which he did not have confidence. Like the resignation of Lewis W. Douglas, who was unwilling to continue to serve as director of the budget under policies with which he could not agree, the Coolidge resignation is expected to have repercussions. The country will be interested to hear what Mr. Coolidge will say when he is free to speak.

Russia has finally decided to pay workers according to their ability. Fortunately for many of us, we are not Russians.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

THE STARS SAY

For Tuesday, January 21

Judging by the lunar aspects, with the strong position of Venus dominating the affairs, it is probable that purely private matters will enlist the attention on this day. This planetary configuration centers on social, domestic, artistic and romantic activities, with the probability of courtship and marriage, or other sentimental associations engaging the exclusive interest.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of an extremely happy and gratifying year, with the prospect of courtship, marriage and sentimental activities obliterating all other interests.

A child born on this day may be cultured, gracious, lovable, popular and will be notably romantic, with its talents lying in the direction of poetry, music and art.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Diary: Early out, in step with men rushing to mighty affairs and a feeling of vast unimportance. And came upon Frances and Isaac Marcosson and bade farewell to H. T. Webster off to winter in Florida. And waved to that scatter-brained pixey, Gracie Allen.

Home and found Faith Baldwin's signed volume, "The Moon's Our Home," and a telegram from Lenore Ulric that made me flow. So rounding, out my stint and with my wife to chaffer among the shops and later to Pierre's to the Frank Storr's tea for the Daniel Sickles.

To a stag dinner with Lowell Thomas. Afterward to pick up my wife at Helen Hayes' show and upon sudden whim we shot up to the Rainbow Room for a Welsh rabbit. Then home in a fret about the world and lay awake so long I got up and started a magazine piece about Flo Ziegfeld.

The father and daughter combination is one of the noticeable innovations in the dining out and dancing life of the town. Fathers in full evening dress, proudly conscious of the youth and beauty they are escorting. Among the fatherly companionships with daughters are those of Marshall Field, Edmond O'Brien, William Thaw III, Blide Dudley, Bertram Taylor and Lew Brown. Incidentally Edmond O'Brien is the crack non-professional dancer of the town, being one of the few to master the art of the Lindy hop and truckin'.

Not many Broadwayites have kept so many balls juggling as S. Jay Kaufman, one of the first of the New York columnists. His versatility aside from columning has included scouting through Europe for stage talent, promoting benefits, press agenting, running a knitting mill, lecturing and now his most recent exploit—master of ceremonies. He made a polished debut at the opening of Helen Morgan's midnight mosque for young blades as well as fatigued fossils.

Personal nomination for a rival for Jack Benny's suavity on the air—Frank Fay.

Statistics reveal Manhattan's most healthful area, Ruddy Row they call it, stretching along Central Park West where Jack Dempsey and Kate Smith live, between 59th and 101st street. Those who might think the fresh, untainted air from the open space is responsible learn the other side of the park has not kept pace. During children's epidemics as well as fiercer plagues among adults the west side is strikingly light in its toll. There's little tuberculosis there. The most terrific devastation is in one of the notorious lung blocks in Harlem's 130's. It is being razed.

Evidently there are editors who have no time for gardening among literary upshots. A distressed young Boston aspirant, who pleaded for frank criticism instead of the usual rejection slip, sends me the penciled notation he found on his returned manuscript. It read: "Not good, not bad just lousy."

John McClain, the Barrymore of the galleons, brings a salt water tang to ship news reporting that makes him worthy of the mantle of the lamented Harry Action. McClain is a product of Harding's town, Marion, O., husky and shy and streaks a provincial viewpoint with sudden flashes that suggest he has been around alright, alright. He writes best about nothing at all—a subtlety for which many strive but few achieve.

Bagatelles: Ethel Waters is now the richest colored performer... Ex-King Alfonso has 112 wrist watches... Addison split infinitives whenever it sounded better to his ears... Henry Ford, after a trying day, likes a mystery thriller... Lloyd George's idea of heaven is an open fire, a biography and a bowl of Malaga grapes and English walnuts... Lily Pons is terrorized by rides in skyscraper elevators... W. R. Hearst speaks of all his employees as associates.

Last night, or rather at 3 a. m. I tried out a home-made dingbat I have been perfecting the last week. The intent of the device was to light the bedside lamp by pressing a bulb under the pillow. It exceeded original expectations by blowing out every fuse in the apartment, burning a hole in the carpet and scorching a sheet. The electrician explained the last person he knew to try such an experiment wasn't here any more. A weary voice from the other room called: "Why should he be?"

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

PREVENT COLDS

AS AN old time health official, I am always interested in efforts to control the common cold. It deserves constant attention because millions of the population suffer every year from this ailment. It is responsible for much lost time and misery.

This common ailment is spread by droplets of moisture shot into air in coughing and sneezing. Millions of germs are showered on everything within reach. It stands to reason that the best way to prevent colds is to keep away from those who are infected and spreading the disease. Reading a book or paper, or using a pencil which may have been rained upon by the moisture from the nose and throat of a cougher or sneezer should be avoided.

Rigid rules of sanitation should prevail everywhere, but especially in buildings or offices used by large numbers of persons. First, all the sunshine possible should be admitted. The shadows from drawn shades are favorable to prolonging the life of disease bacteria outside the body. In schools and offices a modern, efficient disinfectant should be added to the mop water.

Avoid Sweeping

Dry sweeping and dusting should be avoided. Brooms and dusters extend the range of the poisons sent out by the original sneezes. Instead of dusting, the desks should be wiped off with a cloth wrung out frequently from water containing some worthwhile disinfectant.

All of the suggestions made in a recent bulletin which stimulated this article are indeed excellent ones. If each of us followed them I am sure that colds would be much less prevalent than they are. In addition, many of the serious complications of colds would be prevented. And you must not forget that the real danger of a common cold lies in the possibility of its developing into a chest cold or pneumonia.

To prevent colds it is necessary to avoid the germs. It is important to keep the skin in good condition, to wear proper clothing, and to eat nourishing food. Right temperature and ventilation in both working and living rooms are essential to good health and resistance to disease.

Other Causes

Despite all these precautions one may fall victim to a cold. This may be because germs are harbored in your teeth, nasal sinuses, tonsils or some other organ of the body. Over-exertion, fatigue, lack of sleep or rest, and undernourishment may precipitate an infection, by reason of the lowered resistance they produce.

Sometimes repeated colds may be traced to a lack of vitamins in the diet. The diet of everybody should be well balanced and in order to be, it must include leafy vegetables, fruits, salads and at least a pint of milk every day. Children should receive these foods, and besides, a quart of milk daily. In addition, cod liver oil should be given the very young.

Avoid careless coughs and sneezes. If you have a cold go home and get to bed. Stay there until you have recovered. In this way you will protect yourself as well as others.

Dr. Copeland is glad to answer inquiries from readers who send addressed stamped envelopes with their questions. All inquiries should be addressed to him in care of this newspaper.

HAVE COLOR IN CHEEKS

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should try Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 20 years of study. Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound. Know them by their olive color.

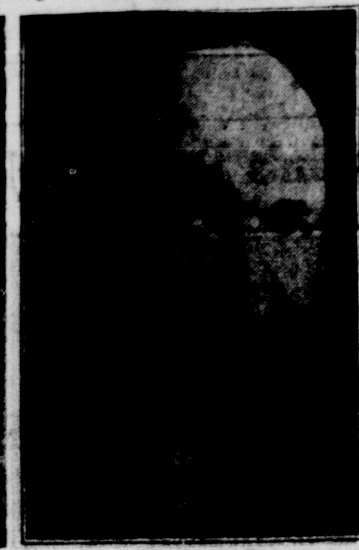

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days, you must get at the cause.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets act on the bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects. They help overcome constipation. Try them and note the pleasing results. Millions of boxes sold yearly. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Alibi Witnesses In Case to Be Called
PITTSBURGH, Jan. 20.—James J. Westwood's attorneys lined up a half dozen witnesses today in an attempt to show that during a "vital half hour" last July 10, he was nowhere near the scene of his wife's slaying.

The little McKees Rocks justice of the peace is depending upon the alibi he was at Eddie Peyton's night club at the time someone thrust a revolver through an apartment window and fired three shots at Mrs. Martha Westwood.

Defense counsel William Coleman and H. Barney Cohen said they would start their parade of alibi witnesses as soon as the state winds up the remaining points in its case.

PENNSY MARKS BUILDING YEAR
Construction, Improvement Boosted During 1935

Last year, which showed some improvement in general business, was signalized by one of the greatest construction, betterment and service improvement programs in the history of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Reflecting the faith of the management in the future of the country and of the railroad industry, the betterments and extensions carried out and undertaken in the last 12 months cover nearly every part of the territory served by the railroad.

Electrify Section of Road
Outstanding among these achievements was the completion, at a cost of $100,000,000, of the work of electrifying the entire Pennsylvania Railroad passenger and freight trackage between New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington—the largest single project of its kind ever undertaken. The last stages of this work, which included extending the passenger electrification from Wilmington, Del., to Washington, electrifying the freight tracks over the entire route, and building 101 new electric locomotives, was financed through the Public Works Administration and gave employment to 25,000 men.

During 1935, also, delivery was completed on an order for 7,000 new freight cars, and shortly before the end of the year the placing of record-breaking orders for 7,000 more new freight cars was announced.

Speed Up Schedules
Passenger train schedules were speeded up throughout the entire system during the year. New York and Chicago were brought within 16½ hours of each other; Philadelphia and Chicago within 15 hours. The time between New York and Washington was cut on the fastest trains, "The Congressional" north and southbound, to 225 minutes for the 225 mile run, including six intermediate stops. The Philadelphia-Washington time was cut to 2 hours and 12 minutes.

A further comprehensive program of air-conditioning was carried out, and before the close of the year 1159 air-conditioned passenger cars were being operated on the Pennsylvania Railroad system, the largest fleet of these cars on any railroad in the world.

Passenger traffic on the Pennsylvania made a substantial gain during 1935, reversing a steady ebb of the tide which began in 1921.

Today's Pattern

Anne Adams

REALIZE A SAVING
Pattern 2652

Mary Jane's welcome caller at playmates' homes because she always looks so fresh and dainty. Other mothers ask the secret—a very simple one, for Mary Jane's frocks are made at home, and she has a goodly supply of them since she's so inexpensive to make and launder. Any mother can make this cunning model herself, in just a morning or so, and the matching bloomers in a few additional moments. A wide center panel and all-in-one sleeves and yokes cut the actual sewing time in half. Some tops look best in a flared sleeve, others in elastic-run sleeves that puff, but both are sure to favor a gay cotton print, and patch pockets.

Pattern 2652 is available in sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6 takes 2½ yards 36 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. Be sure to state size.

Be sure to order our spring pattern book for smart new clothes that'll fit you and your needs to a "T"! Gay, practical frocks to cheer you at work. Lovely party frocks and sports clothes to flatter you at play. Collars, blouses, skirts for multiplying costumes. Chic slenderizing styles. Patterns for tots. Frocks 15 cents. Book and a pattern together, 25 cents.

Study Legal End of AAA Revision Plan

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—With leaders on Capitol Hill giving increasing attention to the proposal for re-enacting the AAA's processing taxes retroactively, the idea was being seriously studied from a legal standpoint today by the justice department.

First advanced by Senator Bankhead (D. Ala.), the proposal has taken strong hold in congress, as a means to prevent the government from losing the $1,200,000,000 in taxes levied under the dead AAA. But leaders were awaiting the advice of the government's lawyers before moving.

Edward A. O'Neil, president of the American farm bureau federation, said today his organization would push for legislation to block processors from obtaining the taxes. He said he already had conferred with members of the house ways and means committee.

Steel Production Falls This Month

CLEVELAND, Jan. 20.—Steel production this month seems certain to fall below December output, said the Magazine Steel today. It will be the first time since 1921 that such a situation has occurred.

The operating rate since Jan. 1 has climbed only three points, compared to 8½ in the same period last year.

WISCONSIN TO TEST INDIANA QUINTET TODAY

Hoosiers' Right To Top Position of Big 10 Is Doubtful

CHICAGO, Jan. 20 — Indiana's right to top position in the Big 10 basketball championship game probably will be thoroughly tested tonight when the Hoosiers tackle Wisconsin on the Big Ten floor.

The Hoosiers today had possession of first place with four straight victories. Purdue also was undefeated but had played one game. The Boilermakers will face action again until Feb. 1 in the annual tussle with midwestern examinations.

Expect Trouble
While the Hoosiers were right up there, the slender margins by which they won their last three victories indicated they could expect no end of trouble, and possibly a beating, from the Badgers. Indiana made Minnesota its fourth victim Saturday night, but had to wait a stalling act in the last 10 minutes to gain a 33 to 31 victory. The Hoosiers had to use similar tactics to stand off rallies by Northwestern and Chicago.

The game ranks as the standout of a dull schedule for the week. Hoosier battles with text books are occupying enough teams to fill the week's activity to five conference games and two non-conference contests.

Northwestern meets Minnesota and Iowa plays Michigan at Ann Arbor in tonight's other games. Chicago meets Northwestern at Madison and Michigan plays its home game in Saturday's offering. Marquette plays at Chicago Tuesday and Ohio State tackles Pennsylvania at Philadelphia Saturday in the non-conference number.

In Third Place
Northwestern moved into third place and jolted Illinois' hope of retaining its share of the title, by scoring a 40 to 28 triumph at Chicago Saturday. Ohio State came over fourth position by whipping Iowa, 34 to 26, at Columbus.

Michigan bounced into a tie with Wisconsin and Iowa for fifth at Ann Arbor. The Hoosiers won their biggest total in years in a 61 to 53 victory over Chicago. Bill Harlow scored 16 points and was assisted by Bill Lutz who accounted for 10. They could not, however, overcome the shooting of the Townsends, John Earl, and George Rudnick who led the Wolverine attack.

How They Played In Class C. Loop Games Saturday

The Christian, Emmanuel Lutheran and Presbyterian churches in the Class C. League played at the Memorial building in the afternoon.

The Christians won out over the Presbyterian quintet, 36 to 18, as Bedford tallied 13 points; the Emmanuel Lutherans had some difficulty in downing the Baptists, 28 to 18; and the Presbyterians hit the stride in the second period, leading 20 to 12 victory over the Methodists.

Chalk Up Another for Louis

Down goes Charley Retzlaff, and Joe Louis chalks up another one-round knockout in one-sided battle in Chicago. Louis entered the ring a 20-1 favorite and as the picture shows he should have been 1,000-1.

COX, MEHLHORN PLAY OFF TIE

Two Pros Matched for Extra 18 Holes After Ending Even

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Jan. 20 — Wiffy Cox and Bill Mehlhorn found themselves working overtime today to decide the winner of the $3,000 Sacramento open tournament.

The two pros were matched in an extra 18-hole encounter after they had finished all square with scores of 286 at the end of the regulation 72 holes Sunday.

Mehlhorn, the Louisville, Ky., expert, started out to win last Friday. He led the first two days with a pair of 71's and might have finished the job yesterday except for a ragged nine holes in the morning round during which he slipped to a 74, two over par. He came back in the afternoon, however, shooting two under par.

Cox, who played 54 holes with a little gallery attention and the last 18 with only a scattering at his heels, turned in two 73's on the first two days and two beautiful 70's on the final 3 holes Sunday.

Struthers Defeats Memorial, 26 to 21

YOUNGSTOWN, Jan. 20 — Struthers High defeated its arch-rivals Memorial-26-21 in a hard-fought basketball battle at the Struthers High gym Saturday.

Coach Francis' Struthers quintet was forced to rally in the third period to garner the victory. The teams were tied 7-7 at the first frame, but Memorial led 14-10 at half time. Then Struthers started hitting the hoop to lead 19-17 when the third session ended.

Harkins and Covington were the mainstays for Struthers, while J. Tofil, Stanior and Kowalechick starred for Memorial.

Brothers Garner Honors In Skiing

CHICAGO, Jan. 20 — Sverre and Alf Engen, of Salt Lake City's ski-jumping Engens, today had finally sorted out their share of the honors in the 30th annual meet of the Norge Ski club.

On the strength of a record-breaking jump of 194 feet off the big slope at Fox River valley yesterday Brother Alf at first was announced as the Class A title winner. The judges, however, decided they liked Brother Sverre's form better even though he hadn't jumped as far, and awarded him first place by a margin of seven-tenths of a point—217.5 to 216.8 for Alf.

Haarlow Leads Big Ten Scoring Race

CHICAGO, Jan. 20 — Bill Haarlow's spectacular shooting hasn't won the University of Chicago a Big Ten basketball contest yet, but it has moved the slender forward out in front in his defense of the individual scoring title.

Haarlow accounted for 16 points Saturday night as the Maroons lost to Michigan, boosting his total in conference competition to 55 and moving him ahead of Warren Whittingler of Ohio State. Whittingler collected 11 points as the Buckeyes defeated Iowa, but dropped to second with a 41 total.

Sidinger's Scores Give Reserve Win

(By Associated Press)
CLEVELAND, Jan. 20 — Western Reserve's smooth scoring basketball squad took over the Case team Saturday 37 to 26.

Wayne Sidinger, sophomore forward from Salem, ran wild in the third period to collect 13 points and give Reserve a lead which Case could not approach. Sidinger had eight field goals and two fouls for a total of 18 points for the game.

WITTENBERG IS GIVEN CHANCE IN CONFERENCE

Lutherans Will Play Undeclared Teams of Ohio Circuit

COLUMBUS, Jan. 20 — Wittenberg college stood squarely in the center of the Ohio conference basketball spotlight today. No greater opportunity to prove a claim to greatness ever has been offered than that the one Coach Bill Stobbs and his Lutherans have this week.

Wittenberg, Marietta, Muskingum and Otterbein are the only undeclared teams in the circuit. This week Wittenberg stacks up against the other three—which places the Lutherans definitely on the spot.

Meets Otterbein
Wittenberg tangles with Otterbein at Westerville Wednesday night. Both teams have won their two league starts. Wittenberg takes on Coach Duke Hayes' Marietta Pioneers in the Ohio river city Friday and goes to Muskingum for Saturday's fray.

By winning all three the Lutherans can take undisputed possession of first place. A lone defeat will push Wittenberg down among the also rans.

In the Buckeye league the unbeaten Cincinnati team meets Ohio university, tied for second place, in the week's feature at Athens, where the Bobcats are always tough. An Ohio U. victory would throw the Bobcats, Bearcats and Ohio Wesleyan into a tie for the lead. If the Bishops upset Marshall, Dayton and Miami tangle in the other Buckeye game to determine which is to climb out of fourth.

Two dozen games are scheduled on the collegiate cage front this week, half of them in the Ohio conference, three in the Buckeye, and the others non-league affairs.

AZUCAR AGAIN LEADING HORSE

Ex-Steeplechaser Makes Comeback at Santa Anita Track

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 20 — Azucar, the stout hearted ex-steeplechaser, has been scratched from the list of "forgotten horses" at Santa Anita park.

The big chestnut gelding—whose name means sweet sugar in Spanish—dropped into the shadows after winning some $100,000 for Fred Elger, Jr. in the Santa Anita handi-cap a year ago.

But today, Azucar is "back," with notice that he must be given careful thought in the next running of the Santa Anita classic, February 22.

A minute before the San Felipe handicap Saturday, the eight-year-old was regarded as a has-been and no better than a 20 to one shot in a field of such favorites as Singing Wood, Ariel Cross, Soon Over and Marv.

He won by a head after a gallant stretch drive, covered the mile in a fraction over the track record and paid his backers $42.80 for a $2 ticket. The time was one minute, 36 seconds, just one-fifth of a second under the track record set by Top Row.

Wellsville Hi Loses To East Palestine

EAST PALESTINE, Jan. 20 — East Palestine and Wellsville engaged in a hard battle here Saturday with East Palestine winning 38-31.

Palestine took the lead in the first period 8-5 and were ahead 20-19 at halftime.

Dickens led in the victory with 15 points.

"WIFE IN CUSTODY" by BEATRICE LUBITZ

CHAPTER XXI

The library, like the living room, was ghostly in its linen shroud. The room was almost a tomb. He fastened the catch and threw up the window. He leaned far out, gasping hungrily for air but the hot moist fog brought him no relief. Below the street lay like a soiled ribbon on which dashed shiny black bugs.

He drew back into the room. His head was curiously light and empty. He groped for a lamp on the library table. The soft silk shade had been removed and the bulb gleamed nakedly against his aching lids. On the table was a picture of his son taken when the boy was an infant, lying on his side on a chin-z-covered couch.

Dirk looked at the child as if he were seeing him for the first time. He studied the round sweet face and the toothless smile.

"Good old chap," Dirk whispered. "It's a rotten trick but I'm licked. God help you that you do better." He laid the picture in its leather frame face upward on the covered table. Then he carefully placed his glasses on top of it. He walked slowly over to the open window. In his mind's eye he was still choking Irene. He closed his eyes against the vision. He could see the blue veins throbbing in her low white forehead. Irene's beauty rose before him to torture him. He groaned aloud.

"Irene . . . Irene . . . Oh, Helen," he whispered, "Helen, my poor lost girl."

He peered up near-sightedly at the sky. It was heavy with clouds. A rumble of distant thunder shook the heavens. Every now and then heat lightning rent the clouds apart for an instant.

"There will be rain," he thought, "and maybe that will bring relief."

He peered down but without his glasses there was nothing there but a blank. Quite calmly he lifted his leg over the sill, then brought the other up. He sat for a second on the ledge. A cool breeze suddenly sprang up and brushed against his wet forehead.

"Ah, that feels good," he murmured.

He slid down off the window sill into a sudden roar of fresh cold air.

Walter reached his sister's apartment at eleven o'clock. He had driven madly through the night in a heavy rain and lightning storm that broke just as he started out. Irene's shrieks ringing in his ears, the policemen, reporters, neighbors, Walter was locked in her room. She would see no one but when she heard his voice she let him in. She crouched in the corner of her bed and when Walter saw her face, his heart contracted with pity for her.

"Irene," he faltered, "my dear, my dear . . ." He held out his hands and with a cry of infinite anguish she fell into them and wept brokenly against his breast.

"I loved him. I loved him so! It was an accident," she sobbed. "He leaned over for air."

"Yes, it was an accident," he repeated dully. But Walter had already heard that the policeman on the beat, admitted by Irene who hadn't missed Dirk, found the glasses on top of the baby's picture. He had brought up Dirk's wallet. Irene didn't need to be told. She had followed the policeman into the apartment, too surprised even to question the intrusion. One glance at the wallet, the empty library, the open window and she knew . . .

She screamed Walter's number into the telephone, and before she had finished shrieking for him to come she fainted, for the first time in her life.

"I can't face it, Walt," she gasped. "I can't face it. I want to die. I can't face the disgrace."

"It was an accident, Irene. There is nothing to face."

"I know, Walt. I know. I goaded him. I made him do it. Oh, Walt, I loved him so," she sobbed brokenly. "Sh . . . Irene, they'll hear you in the next room. There are policemen and detectives there."

"Where is he?" she whimpered.

"I've arranged everything," he said gently.

"I can't face it," she moaned.

"Irene, dearest, if you don't calm yourself, I'll have to get a doctor. What good does all this moaning and screaming do, dear? You can't bring him back."

"Bring him back? I didn't kill him. She killed him! His sin killed him. Your wife! She killed him," Irene accused hysterically.

"Irene, you don't know what you are saying."

"I don't, eh? Listen, Walter, do you know why Dirk killed himself?" she demanded fiercely. "I'll tell you," she pressed her tear-swollen face against his. "I found out about him and Helen. Your wife! She laughed harshly. 'When I faced him with the truth, he couldn't bear it. That's why he killed himself,' she panted.

"You're mad," Walt whispered. "It's the truth."

Walt didn't believe a word of it, but as Irene raced on with the story he began to wonder dazedly if it could possibly be true. At first to humor her, he agreed with her but as she relentlessly refreshed his memory about this event and that, he was consumed by a hard, fierce anger against Helen. Even if it weren't true—and she had not been unfaithful—Helen was none the less guilty of placing herself in the position of rival to Irene. Irene, his sister, the queen of the family to whom he owed so much! That his wife—Helen—Helen whom he loved and trusted—that she should have done this to Irene—and to him!

Irene, sensing the rage that was surging through him, cunningly brought up times and places where Helen and Dirk had been intimate. "And right under your nose," she taunted him.

She had everything at her fingertips. She had been thinking of nothing but Helen's perfidy since the policeman came in with mule evidence of the tragedy. She clung to Helen's guilt, magnified and emphasized it in her mind and now she was overflowing with poison. If it weren't that she was determined to believe that Helen was the cause of the tragedy and to tell Walter and have him punish Helen, she couldn't have born the horror of Dirk's suicide. Helen was to blame! Helen killed him. Helen, the murderer—

"I don't want to see anyone, Walt. No one is to come in to me. I want to be alone. You'll take care of everything."

"Yes, I'll take care of everything."

"I don't want to see anyone," she said. "I won't let anyone in. But let me get you a nurse or a maid."

"I don't want anyone," she shrieked. "Don't let anyone in to me."

"All right, dear, I won't. And you'll throw Helen out?"

"I'll tend to her after the funeral."

"Don't let her see him!"

"Please, Irene, unless you calm yourself I won't do a thing."

She calmed herself with an effort. "Walter, I have a passport in my desk. I planned to go abroad before Wells was born. I don't want to see anyone. I want to go away. I can't face it, Walt. I don't want anyone to look at me. I've got to get away from everybody. Right after the funeral, can you book passage for me secretly so that no one will know? So many boats sail at midnight now. You could slip me aboard; no one will see or know."

"Alone?"

"Alone. I don't want to see anyting all the cigarette boxes he could find around the apartment.

By noon his sisters arrived clamoring to see Irene.

"I want to help her with prayers," Agnes gulped, her eyes red and swollen with weeping.

"You can't see her."

"I must see her!"

"No one will see her while I'm still alive to forbid it," he yelled. "Irene wants to be alone!"

Neither his mother nor the Terhunes did he permit to open her door. He himself brought in trays from the restaurant below and she returned them untouched.

At three o'clock Carl relieved him. Walter threw himself down on the couch in the living-room and slept like a weary dog. He awoke at six, wet with perspiration.

"Helen phoned twice," Carl told him as he gave Walter the accumulated messages. Walter set his jaw. He did the necessary phoning but did not call his wife.

He spent a second night keeping vigil with his sister.

It was decided to hold the funeral on the morning of the third day from the undertaking parlors. Irene still in bed, would not go, but Walter promised to lock her in so that no one would disturb her while he was gone.

And still Walter did not telephone Helen. She called for the dozenth time the morning of the funeral. She was hurt at Walter's brusque voice when he did answer. Her only reproach was that he would not let her help him.

"Are you sure you don't need me, dear? I want to help."

"No," he retorted.

And finally—Helen was stung by the note in his voice.

"Very well, I'll see you at the funeral," she said.

Launch Investigation of 200 Tunnel Deaths

Congressional labor committee in session at Gauley Bridge, W. Va., left to right, committee stenographer, Miss Philipps Allen, social worker; Representative Glenn Griswold, committee chairman, and Representative Vito Marcantonio, who started the investigation. Below, a group of tunnel workers.

An intensive investigation into working conditions in the tunnel under construction at Gauley Bridge, W. Va., where several hundred workers have died from effects of breathing the quartz dust permeating the tunnel air, was launched by the congressional sub-labor committee, top, to determine whether an official congressional inquiry would be launched.

Seeks New Home

NORRIS, Tenn., Jan. 19.—Evicted from his Tennessee valley farm as the backwaters from a TVA dam crept around his cabin, James Randolph today sought a new home for his wife and seven children.

Yesterday Randolph and his family were forced out of the home they had occupied for seven years. Even as the federal eviction order was being read, waters which eventually will fill the 54,000-acre Norris dam reservoir were lapping about the foundations of the two-room cabin.

Persons who want anything know The News is the Want Medium in this vicinity. So read it.

Double-Mellow OLD GOLDS

DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK

if it isn't the finest cigarette you ever smoked

LAST OCTOBER we issued a daring L challenge to the smokers of the nation. We said, in effect, if the new Double-Mellow Old Golds don't give you a thrill, we'll pay the bill and pay it double.

Never before had such an offer been made on a cigarette. But we made it with our eyes open. The prize crop tobaccos in Double-Mellow Old Golds fully justified this 2 to 1 wager.

For the benefit of those smokers who overlooked this offer, we repeat it again today. Smoke half a pack of Double-Mellow Old Golds. If it isn't the finest smoke you ever tasted... just mail us the remaining cigarettes and the wrapper, at any time before May 1st, 1936, and we'll send you double the price you paid for the full package... plus postage.
